Holliann earned her J.D. from Western Michigan University (WMU) Cooley Law school, magna cum laude. During her time at WMU she was the assistant editor for the Western Michigan University Cooley Law Review, a State Bar of Michigan Law Student Section council member, and a recipient of the Leadership Achievement award. Holliann also worked at Priority Health as a legal extern, where she gained significant experience in the area of health law.

Holliann specializes in health law and has considerable experience in health care, having worked as a nursing technician at Helen Devos Children's Hospital for several years, where she has maintained a working knowledge of medical terminology and basic clinical skills. Holliann earned her BS in health professions and minor in biology from Grand Valley State University.

In addition to being actively involved in her community, Holliann enjoys running, playing the piano, snowboarding and spending time with her family.
